Dear Friends,

Welcome to the new BuildSite!

On our public website, www.buildsite.com, you'll find new graphics, a log in button in a new location [on top!], and more extensive demos.

BuildSite's subscriber customers will see new graphics and features - changes that are a result of comments and feedback from our customers around the country. For messages, printing and submittals, easy to use orange buttons have replaced drop down menus. If you click the Support link, you'll see enhanced online help - perfect for new employees and for anyone who has a question while they're working.

On our public website, we are offering limited free search - by manufacturer and category. This lets visitors to our site sample our database and see first hand the power and productivity of BuildSite Search.

The public website also introduces the BuildSite Distributor Directory. The Directory lists all of BuildSite's distributor customers by branch. From time to time, people come to BuildSite looking to buy products. When they do, we want them to find the distributors who work with us. For more information about our Distributor Directory, please contact me at the address below.

Our goal is a BuildSite that is simple, easy to use and useful to you - day in and day out. As always, we welcome your comments and suggestions and appreciate the opportunity to work with you.

Sincerely,

Ned Trainor
