

Bechtel, Black & Veatch and CH2M Hill Find Answers On BuildSite

Each day, top engineering firms are taking advantage of BuildSite to find the detailed product and technical information they need to develop specifications and to find and source products that meet them. Users from Bechtel, Black & Veatch, Jacobs Engineering, Fluor Daniel, CH2M Hill, and others are using BuildSite to find “the right product for the job”.

And they’re not alone! Within the past year, hundreds of thousands of unique visitors from the construction industry worldwide have used BuildSite for product research. Major engineering firms are joining leading general contractors, concrete, roofing and interior contractors, major homebuilders, and sales reps from leading materials distributors to find the information they need to compete more effectively.

Free Search users are able to search for products using the Manufacturer’s name or the product’s Master Format Category. They’re also able to identify a local distributor using their zip code. Although the Free Search affords fewer methods for Searching, and significantly less overall features than are available to BuildSite’s Subscribers – the value is strong as our growing user-base attests.

BuildSite welcomes these and other leading engineering firms as they look to the web for a single-source of product and technical information.