

December 15, 2008

Welcome, SCIP'rs!

BuildSite is honored to welcome to its website so many new specifications consultants from the Specifications Consultants in Independent Practice (SCIP).

In November-December, BuildSite extended a special offering to SCIP members. We wanted to show the value of BuildSite's online materials database to these hardworking consultants.

Members of SCIP "serve architects and engineers who need written documents prepared by specialists who are technically up-to-date in document organization, materials and methods, and production aids." Additionally, they work with a broader audience, which includes "public agencies, product manufacturers, and facility managers who use consulting specifiers to provide services for which they cannot quickly or economically build staff."

Ned Trainor, BuildSite's president, commented, "George Mills and Jack Margolis, members of SCIP, have made major contributions to BuildSite, both in product classification and database architecture. We're pleased to welcome so many of their SCIP colleagues to the BuildSite community."

For further information, please contact Mimi Streett, Sr. Account Manager, at 510-208-0433 / mstreett@buildsite.com.