GCP Applied Technologies Capabilities

For over half a century, GCP Construction Products has provided solutions to many of the most challenging commercial construction projects worldwide. Impressive commercial structures, including retail plazas & shopping malls, high rise office and residential buildings, convention centers, mixed-used developments, luxury hotels and governmental facilities have relied on GCP's advanced technologies over the years to enhance structural performance and ensure longevity. Such structures often employ complex and striking designs, which demand high performance protection. GCP offers it all.

The world's leading architects, designers and contractors turn to GCP to supply them with the products and expertise they need to achieve excellence in design and construction – from maximizing the useful life and improving the aesthetic appeal of landmark structures; to safeguarding below-grade building components; providing air, water and moisture protection to walls and roofs; and fireproofing the structural steel elements of a building. Not only are these qualities important to those who work with our products, but also valuable to our society to give them the safety and security to enjoy them longer.

In today's global environment, GCP is committed to bridging cultural and technology gaps by furnishing quality products across international borders. GCP has a global network of experts to assist and ensure that projects run smoothly – from the earliest design phases through construction and completion. Our broad technology portfolio allows for a variety of solutions regardless of the design or location.

It is said that every person's work is a portrait of themselves. At GCP Construction Products, we let our work speak for itself.

Application Areas

Substructure:

Proper below grade waterproofing systems are critical for protecting both the commercial building exterior and interior. Commercial structures are often a mix of high-value conditioned spaces, common areas, storage sections, support areas (parking structures) and revenue-generating spaces, bordered by below slab areas, walls or buried roofs. Moisture infiltration in the form of liquid water or vapor can cause substantial damage to the structural substrate, as well as lead to issues related to mold, mildew and poor indoor air quality. GCP Applied Technologies offers both sheet and fluid-applied structural waterproofing systems that provide long-term leak protection throughout the design life of the structure.

Elevated Deck / Green Roof:

Above grade horizontal surfaces are prone to catching and holding water. These areas may be used as pedestrian walkways, outdoor plaza decks, food courts or green roof areas to attract visitors and increase footfall for retail outlets. GCP Applied Technologies's waterproofing membranes, protection and drainage are applied directly to the structural deck and typically covered by a permanent wearing surface. The membranes can be tied into both the below ground waterproofing and façade membranes to ensure total continuity of the building envelope from a single source.

Engineered Façade:

Complex wall designs often pose a challenge for design professionals to ensure acceptable building envelope performance. Air, water and vapor ingress through the exterior wall can cause premature deterioration of the structure, increased energy costs, resulting in substantial and costly remediation. A properly designed air barrier system can provide the level of protection needed to preserve the aesthetics, performance, durability and energy efficiency for the complete life of the building. GCP Applied Technologies is a global leader in air barrier systems, offering a full line of sheet and liquid, permeable and impermeable air barriers.

Sloped Roof:

GCP Applied Technologies's roofing underlayments provide a secondary barrier protecting against roof leaks caused by wind driven rain, snow, and ice melt at critical detail areas. Designers can choose from our complete portfolio of high-performance roofing membranes designed for any shape, geometry or type of roof covering to ensure superior in place performance and leak protection for the design life of the structure.

Structural and Architectural Concrete:

Concrete is a key component in almost any modern commercial structure. GCP Applied Technologies manufactures a wide variety of concrete admixtures and fibers to meet design and construction requirements. Corrosion inhibitors cost-effectively protect reinforcement in areas such as parking garages. Cracking and shrinkage in deck toppings are mitigated through the use of synthetic macro fibers and shrinkage reducing admixtures. Integral color, surface retarders, and high-range water-reducers are combined to create architectural precast panels and precast/prestressed elements.

Structural Steel Fire Protection:

Many commercial structures are often constructed with structural steel frames. Structural steel fireproofing is critical to protecting the integrity of the steel members from fire damage. GCP Applied Technologies's fire protection products come in a range of densities (standard, medium and high); they are spray-applied, allowing for timely installation and offer protection for concealed or exposed, conditioned or unconditioned interior spaces, as well as exposed exterior applications.
