

PROSOCO

Born and bred in America's heartland, Kansas-based PROSOCO pioneered the first cleaners specifically for new brick construction in the mid-50s. Replacing dangerous, inefficient muriatic acid, PROSOCO products set professional cleaning standards still unsurpassed.

The construction industry also called on PROSOCO to develop products for restoration—cleaners that strip away decades of embedded grime, without harming sensitive stone, tile and masonry.

PROSOCO's first restoration—Denver's 14-story Mountain States Telephone Building, 1959—quickly led to other prestigious projects, including the U.S. Capitol, Grand Central Station, Carnegie Hall, and thousands of other landmark structures here and overseas.

In the mid-60s, PROSOCO developed long-lasting protective treatments for stone, tile, concrete and masonry. The line constantly expands and improves, meeting the growing needs of both homeowners and construction professionals.

In 2001, workers used PROSOCO products to help repair terrorist damage at the Pentagon.

Today, family-owned and operated PROSOCO still answers the challenges of new construction, restoration and maintenance. From fighting graffiti to strengthening ancient stone, in small towns and big cities, PROSOCO remains the first name and the last word in cleaning, protecting and maintaining concrete, brick, and stone.

Innovative solutions for buildings.™

PROSOCO
SINCE 1939

Looks count.

Whether your building is a hotel, school, church or office space, its appearance impacts your bottom line.

The appearance of your building and its sidewalks, drives and parking areas makes a strong statement to prospective tenants, clients, guests and other customers. Employees, too.

A clean, attractive property invites business 24 hours a day. A dirty property sends a different message.

What message does the appearance of your place of business send?

Insurance Exchange, Chicago, Ill.—exterior cleaning with PROSOCO products.

Keep it clean.

Oil and grease stains on concrete; mold and mildew on stone trim or EIFS; efflorescence on brick and block; graffiti—all these and more make property look grubby.

And that's just the outside.

Inside, tile and polished stone surfaces, once bright, become gray and dingy from years of spilled food and drink, cigarette smoke, foot traffic, sealers and waxes and more.

Cleaning and maintaining the varied inside and outside surfaces of any business property is complicated. What cleans brick or granite may harm concrete or limestone.

When you enroll in PROSOCO's Property Maintenance Program, you get the full service of an expert cleaning consultant—FREE!

You get a property that attracts business—an appearance you can be proud of.

PROSOCO products protect this decorative concrete from damaging water penetration.

What you get.
