

Rmax Tapered Thermarroof®

Insulation for Above the Deck

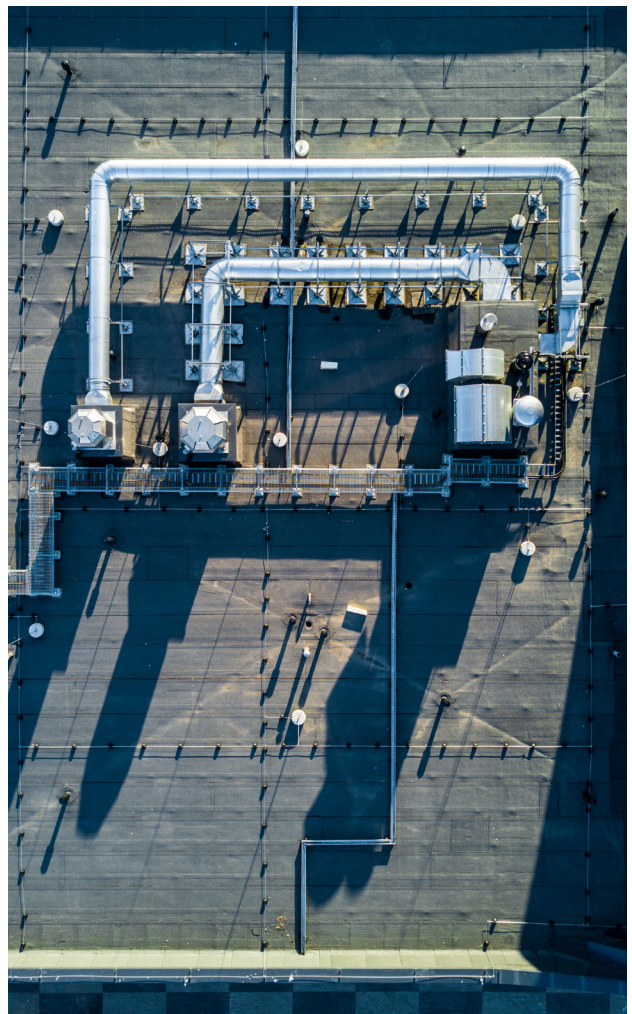

Rmax Tapered Thermarroof® is composed of a closed-cell polyisocyanurate (polyiso) foam core bonded to glass fiber/organic mat facers on both sides. This energy efficient thermal insulation board provides a very effective and economical rooftop drainage solution and helps extend the life of all roof assemblies by eliminating ponded water, when installed properly.

Tapered Thermarroof® is typically manufactured with slopes of 1/8", 1/4" or 1/2" per foot and utilizes flat Rmax Multi-Max® FA-3 polyiso filler panels to build up thickness for the roof design.

This tapered insulation is suitable for use in insulated roofing system constructions utilizing built-up roof (BUR), modified bitumen or single ply membranes. It is approved for use in new roofing constructions and limited retrofit/recover roofing constructions over steel, wood, non-combustible and certain types of nailable roof decks.

Rmax Tapered Thermarroof® Benefits

- Glass fiber/organic mat facers
- Provides positive roof drainage
- Free factory engineered take-offs
- 25 psi compressive strength available
- Reduces material and labor costs
- Contributes toward LEED® credits
- Offers tax credit, where applicable

Properly installed Rmax Tapered Thermarroof® helps extend the life of all roof assemblies, simply by eliminating ponded water.
